Document Security

Do you know who manages your print security? Many businesses don't. The fact is, left unsecured, printers and MFDs can pose a significant security risk to you and your business, making it extremely vulnerable and susceptible to theft, loss and security breaches.

As shared printing environments become more complex and increasingly mobile employees print from smartphones, laptops, tablets and other devices, without proper management there is a real chance that your sensitive documents could end up in the wrong hands.

Altodigital's approach to document security revolves around four key areas. This involves the assessment of the current infrastructure and any potential risks, prevention of future breaches, optimisation, as well as support and ongoing review through our experienced engineers.
