Mobile Print

We all live in a mobile age and with it come new and exciting possibilities for productive and collaborative working. With the advent of smartphones, tablets and laptops, your staff must be able to electronically create, access, communicate and print data 'on the go'.

Your business processes, systems and mobile working now need to work together, ensuring communication continues to flow, data can be shared, stored and edited and staff can work efficiently, irrespective of their location.

Printing on the go needs to be extremely quick, simple, secure and effective. By adopting a mobile print strategy, you can print securely from any mobile device, wherever you are - whenever you need to.

See the benefits of Mobile Print

With an Altodigital mobile print service, you can search for and print to literally thousands of public print locations across the UK, including shops, hotels, restaurants, business lounges and airports.

Away on business or just out for the night, mobile print equips you with a robust solution that ensures you can continue working.

Print whenever, wherever

By using dedicated apps and cloud technology, you can easily identify 'hot spots' in your vicinity and any wireless printers that are available for you to print to securely.

Clever map integration also ensures accurate navigation to the device for retrieval of your prints. This data helps mobile workers to choose the best and most effective print option based on their location, print history, job type and other important parameters.

A new horizon in mobile print technology

If your business has multiple divisions and site offices, at some point you will probably find yourself travelling between them.

Mobile solutions give employees the freedom to print from their mobile device to any printer or MFD located on their corporate network.

There is also a facility for wireless printing without access to a network. This means that wherever you are, whatever you need to print you are in full control, day and night.
